

hot moonlighters

INTERIOR CONSULTANTS: Let's be clear, interior designers, armed with their degrees and ASID memberships, make us dizzy with envy. The knowledge, the know-how, the refinement. But sometimes, all we need is a little interior pick-me-up — a clever eye to help us determine that those '70s brass lamps will kill in our living room, or no, that crochet Mickey Mouse pillow is not ironic.

Enter interior consultants, a new wave of crazy-stylish men and women whose personal polish flawlessly translates to homes. "People can be intimidated by designers," says Jon Tutolo, who honed his eye and gift for neutral-colored interiors rich with layers and textures as co-owner of West Village boutique Haven. Shelby Wagner was an IBM executive before a remodel of his own University Park home led to a second career working with private clients and on the finish-out of new homes built by Newport Group Construction. FD Luxe contributor Samantha Reitmayer Sano juggles a thriving graphic-design business with growing acclaim as an interiors wizard. Style writer and Dallas Flea founder Brittany Edwards scours White Elephant and Salvation Army, not the Design Center, to give clients her signature brand of Bohemian chic. "There's nothing like walking into a beautifully decorated room," Edwards says.

CARTER ROSE

Shelby Wagner helped an East Dallas couple create this Moroccan-themed nursery for their first baby.

■ Jon Tutolo, $100 an hour, 214-954-1515

■ Shelby Wagner, call for hourly rate, 214-363-4713

■ Samantha Reitmayer Sano, $100 an hour, 817-707-6799

■ Brittany Edwards, from $65 an hour, 714-673-2338